

Regarding XM radio content and theNational Association of Broadcasters - I have subscribed to XM since it's first introduction. In the beginning I paid for the service because it was a new novel idea. Now that it has grown to the extent that it has I use it as an information tool. A appreciate the content and veriety. I know I can depend on the service from coast to coast. I do not appreciate out side sources such as the association of broadcasters dictating what a service that I pay for can and cannot offer.

Thank you for your time
